Teams that Work

with David J. Brailer, MD, PhD

David Brailer is a leader in entrepreneurship in health care, specifically in the use of health information technology. He is currently the Chairman for Health Evolution, an education and research firm in San Francisco, CA. Dr. Brailer was appointed by President George W. Bush as the nation's first National Coordinator for Health Information Technology, or most notably, the first health IT czar, leading efforts to digitalize healthcare. In this role, Dr. Brailer oversaw development of the nation's strategy for electronic records, information sharing, consumer empowerment and transformation of research and public health. He earned his MD from WVU in 1986 and went on to earn his PhD in economics from the Wharton School at University of Pennsylvania in 1992. Dr. Brailer is originally from Kingwood, WV.
